the only sources of recreation and France. Far from the influence of expect of tomorrow. family and friends, with nothing to give them pleasure, seeing always the bloodshed and desolation of war, they have only these seven war activities to look out for their welfare. The hut of the Y. M. C. A. or the Knights of Columbus or the Jewish Welfare Board is home to them. It is a place where they can gather during their leisure hours, write letters, talk, hear lectures, see picture shows and other their lives even as the men of the amusements and forget for a time the other Allies have done. heart-rending scenes they must view in the trenches and the ever-present grim specter of death.

With the end of life ever in sight, soldiers are likely to grow careless and reckless. If no good and safe form of amusement offers itself, they far away.

We as a Nation want the men who have offered themselves for the sake of liberty and freedom to remain clean in mind and heart. Because they are fighting for us, we must look out for them. It will benefit us little, if in winning our battles, they lose their own ideals.

It is our duty to keep them happy and to keep temptation away from them as much as possible. To do this, we must furninsh them wholesome amusements.

We can not each in person go to do our part but we can give our dollars to the workers of the United War Activities who are already there, with the knowledge that they will be used to the best advantage.

DON'T SLACKEN UP YET

With the end of actual fighting apare inclined to slacken up in our war has returned to New York. activities. Let's not begin too soon.
